

Garden

11/4/17

Dear Mr. Egan,

I have chosen to give you my plant pot because of how great a homegroup teacher you have been and because it would add to the decor of the room. I hope you like it!

I feel that my part in creation is only a small one but since making my garden, I know the care that God had to take to create us and the world around us.

Earth is so special because we are the only planet able to sustain life. Us humans, being the only species able to look after Earth, need to go to great measures to care for Earth like I am entrusting you to care for the garden.

The most interesting thing I learnt over the past few weeks is the enormity and vastness of the universe. We are so lucky yet unlucky to be the only planet in that entire <sup>universe</sup> ~~place~~, that can sustain life! I find this incredible. Especially so, that we are in the top 2% (in wealthiness) of the world, which is literally, one in a gazillion.

When we went to the prayer garden to reflect, I realised the amount of destruction that us humans cause in our daily life. We litter, we pollute, we clear out, we cut down and we destroy, so much life around us. We really need to take more care for our lucky little world!

The garden represents Shalom like our earth. It is a little world. Also, the care ~~and~~ that is required to look after the garden, which lets it thrive, is a wonderful representation of Shalom.

7/14/11

Caroline

My only request is that you care for and nurture this little garden, which, if you like, I can help with. This garden is very lucky to have you caring for it.

From Luke. AR4M.7F. :)

I feel that my part in creation is only a small one but since making my garden I know the love that God had to take to create us and the world around us.

Earth is so special because we are the only planet able to sustain life. As humans, being the only species able to look after Earth, need to go to great measures to care for Earth like I am entrusting you to care for the garden.

The most interesting thing I learnt over the past few weeks is the enormity and vastness of the universe. We are so lucky yet unlikely to be the only planet in that entire ~~area~~ <sup>universe</sup> that can sustain life. I find this incredible especially so that we care in this tiny speck in the vastness of the world, which is literally one in a billion.

When we went to the bigger garden to reflect, I realised the amount of destruction that as humans could do in our daily life. We felt we were still we felt we were cut down and we created so much life around us we really need to take more care for our little world.

The garden represents a place like our earth. It is a little world. Also the care that is required to look after the garden which lets it thrive is a wonderful representation of God's love.